HASKELL DOES NOT RECOGNIZE COURT

REFUSES THE INJUNCTION PAPERS BROUGHT BY THE SHERIFF.

CAPITOL NOW OKLAHOMA CITY

Troops Stationed at Logan County Court House in Guthrie—Seal of State Removed.

Oklahoma City, Ok., June 12.—Gov. C. N. Haskell will not recognize authority of the Logan County District court to issue injunctions or restraining orders against him as chief executive of the state of Oklahoma.

Sheriff John Mahoney of Guthrie arrived on a late train tonight for the purpose of carrying out the court's order and secured service upon the governor in the matter of the injunction issued there last night.

Sheriff Makes Appearance.

Gov. Haskell was seated in the parlor of the Lee Hotel, conversing with Dr. A. E. Davenport of Oklahoma City, when Sheriff Mahoney appeared with hat in one hand and with the other holding two documents. The governor was told that the papers were from the district court of Guthrie, replying to which the governor told the sheriff he had no authority to serve papers in this county, and the court had no authority to issue them against a governor.

Documents Fall to Floor.
The sheriff passed the documents to the governor as the latter spoke, but instead of taking them, he shoved them to one side. One of the documents fell to the floor; the other passed over the balustrade and flitted to the tiled lobby below.

Statement by Officer.
"The governor told me to get out," said Sheriff Mahoney, after he came down the stairs, "or that he would put me in the guard house. He said that the court would find itself there, too. I have nothing to do with what the court says. I was told to serve the papers, and did so."

"If the governor of Oklahoma wants to contest the issue with the district court, I am perfectly willing."

Uses Special Train.

Governor Haskell came to Oklahoma City early this morning, traveling in a special train from Tulsa, where he spoke last night and heard the election returns. He immediately announced that he was here to stay, and set up what people called the executive office in parlor D of the Lee hotel. During last night, after results of the election became known, W. B. Anthony of Marlow, private secretary to the governor, was dispatched to Guthrie by automobile, and returned via the same conveyance, carrying the Governor's seal of state.

Secretary of state Bill Cross came with his seal last night.

Military Guard Established.

During the day there were a number of reports reaching the governor's rooms from persons in the employ of the State at Guthrie, expressing fear

By a big majority the voters have declared their preference for Oklahoma City as the place for the capital location, and by a vote of over two to one they have voted down the proposed amendments.

CAPITOL LOCATION CARRIES BY 45,000

OKLA. CITY WINS BY BIG VOTE. OVER SHAWNEE AND GUTHRIE

Railroad Amendment Defeated by Thirty-Five Thousand as All Late Returns Indicate

Okla. City, June 13.—The capital location bill's majority in Saturday's election approximates 45,000. These figures are based on returns received Sunday from precincts not theretofore reported and from more complete returns received from several counties in that territory most friendly to the bill. Only one adverse report was received. It came from Delaware county, where 333 votes were cast for the bill and 781 against it. In that county, however, Oklahoma City received 231 votes; Shawnee, 1; and Guthrie 162.

The total vote cast in Washita county for the bill was 1,822, and against it, 436. Oklahoma City received 2,249; Guthrie, 230, and Shawnee, 51. Twenty of the 20 precincts in Canadian county show 1,467 votes for the bill and 885 against. Oklahoma City received 1,599 votes; Shawnee, 21, and Guthrie 185. The total vote in Choctaw county for the bill was 1,284, and against it 392. Oklahoma City received 1,175; Shawnee, 35, and Guthrie 242.

The proposition to amend the constitution removing restrictions from railroads was defeated by 35,000 to 40,000.

Guthrie is said to claim that the bill is defeated, depending on a heavy rural vote in opposition. As a matter of fact, however, the returns are from both urban and rural precincts, and all later returns positively refute the contention. Shawnee is said to have conceded the defeat of the bill.

BIG WRECK AT CEMENT PLANT ON SUNDAY MORNING

FLY WHEEL BURSTS ASUNDER. SEVERAL MEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPE, 1 INJURED

Loss Will Run Into the Thousands. Several Weeks Before Plant Operates in Full Again

Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock there was a wreck at the Oklahoma Portland cement plant which came very near being disastrous when a big fly wheel sixteen feet in diameter burst asunder hurling its ponderous fragments with almost incredible violence.

The generator engine in the engine room from some unknown cause was running away. Messrs. Rodarmel, Smith, Curtis and H. Beck were at the engine trying to stop it when the wheel went to pieces. That they escaped uninjured is nothing short of miraculous. However, Mr. Rodarmel, the master mechanic, sustained a severe sprain of the ankle, supposedly caused by a piece of concrete, and Wm. Breeden, the boiler man came near being struck by a segment of the rim of the wheel which passed through the roof of the boiler room and stuck into the four inch concrete floor.

One piece, about one-eighth of the wheel, was hurled through the top of the west side of the engine room about thirty feet above the floor, bursting a great aperture in the wall, and landing about one hundred and thirty feet from the engine and on the ground between two of the buildings. Two other parts of the wheel were whirled through the same rent, one, a spoke, weighing several hundred pounds shobbing through a wooden structure over a belt conveyor to the west of the engine room and still further away by several yards than the first fragment, the second a segment of the rim passed clear over the above mentioned building and fell about three hundred feet from the starting point. This piece missed everything so far as known and also fell on the ground. Still another division weighing six or seven hundred pounds shot straight up through the engine room and as it came down took a small corner off the very top of one of the one-hundred and thirty foot high boiler stacks. This was the same missile that stuck in the boiler room floor causing the injury to the boiler man. Yet a fifth part of the wheel flew up through the roof and stuck in the floor of a belt run-way from the rock crusher, being projected about two hundred feet.

One more part struck the steam pipe connecting with this same engine bending the pipe and making it useless. But the larger portion of the fly-wheel did not leave its pit; on the other hand it beat about the bottom and sides of the pit breaking the steam exhaust pipe and oil and vent pipes.

Besides the loss of the wheel itself the material damage to the plant's building and machinery is small. Other engines in close proximity to the generator engine were unharmed, and as for that matter that one is not hurt excepting the fly wheel and pipe connections. It seems that every portion of the flying wheel had a well chosen spot to alight where damage would be least. If some of those steel projectiles would have struck a vital part of the machinery Ada perhaps would probably have been jarred to her foundation.

Mr. W. L. Whitaker, the superintendent, thinks heaven smiled propitiously on them yesterday, for he remarked that Providence was taking care of the cement people.

While the damage and loss from the wreck will run into the thousands of dollars the greater part, it appears, will be from suspended operation; because it will be a matter of a good many weeks before operation in full is resumed. In the meantime the cement plant will use all the power available from the city electric plant.

While there were a great number of people, hearing of the disaster, visited the plant yesterday Mr. Whitaker, the superintendent, and W. S. Creveling, the chemist, sometimes had their patience taxed by questioners, but their good humored courtesy never failed them during the entire day.

IN REPUBLICAN MAINE.

Will some opponent of an educational qualification for voting in democratic Oklahoma please give us his opinion of the following law of republican Maine.

AMENDMENT XXIX. Constitution of Maine.

"No person shall have the right to vote or be eligible to office under the constitution of this state, who shall not be able to read the constitution
in the English language and write his name; provided, however, that the provisions of this amendment shall not apply to any person prevented by a physical disability from complying with its requisitions, nor to any person who now has the right to vote,
nor to any person who shall be sixty years of age or upwards at the time
this amendment shall take effect."

(The twenty-ninth amendment was proposed to the people by a resolve of the Sixty-fourth Legislature; approved April 2, 1891; adopted September 12, 1892; proclaimed by Governor Burleigh December 13, 1892,
and took effect on the first Wednesday of January, 1893.)

The "Grandfather Clause" is to the people of our western counties a matter of keen political interest. To the counties of central Oklahoma it is a great political issue. But to the counties of the East side it is a matter of life and death.

Oklahoma City must command the sincerest admiration of every citizen
in the state who has the Oklahoma spirit.

The gilt edge but sensational removal of Oklahoma's State Capitol
within one night is the wonder of the nation.

GRANDFATHER CLAUSE UP TO VOTERS

PROCLAMATION WILL BE ISSUED
TODAY BY CROSS, DATE OF
VOTING AUGUST 2.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 12.—
There will be filed by Secretary of State Cross tomorrow a proclamation
submitting the so-called grandfather
clause, recently initiated by a vote
of the people, on August 2.

The proclamation, it develops, was executed and signed by Gov. Haskell
at Sulphur Thursday last, although
that fact did not become public until today. An alternative writ of mandamus was issued by Judge Hus-
ton of the Logan County District
Court some days ago, requiring Secretary of State Cross to give date
for hearing protests within five days
of June 7 or make answer on June 17, in Guthrie.

Secretary Cross insists that he has not been served with the process and
in the court proceedings will not be recognized.

August 2 when the grandfather
clause goes to a vote, is also the
primary election date and if adopted,
it is planned to enforce its provisions for the November election.

The proposition is submitted as an
amendment to the suffrage article
of the Constitution and proposes that
all persons whose ancestors prior to
Jan. 1, 1866 did not have the right
of suffrage under some form of Government, shall be required to be able to read and write. Protests against
the petitions were made before the Secretary of State by the Republican
and Socialists State Committees,
claiming that the hearing the Secretary gave was premature.

PINCHOT CONVERTS R. R. PRESIDENT

THREE HOUR DISCUSSION WITH HILL OF THE GREAT NORTHERN.

INCIDENT WAS A SURPRISE

At Minnesota Club Banquet Deposed
Chief Forester Takes Up Cud-
gel for Conservation.

St. Paul, Minn., June 11.—Louis W.
Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, and, therefore, one of
the most radical and outspoken opponents of the Roosevelt-Pinchot political of reclamation and conservation
has become a convert to the plans
started by the Roosevelt administration.

Three-Hour Discussion.

For three hours yesterday, Hill,
Gifford, Pinchot and James H. Gar-
field discussed the question at a Minnesota Club luncheon. Mr. Hill
attacking the conservation policies
on the grounds that they resulted
in keeping settlers out of the Western country, and Pinchot and Garfield defending the withdrawal of
lands from settlement.

In the end Mr. Hill admitted that he had been misinformed, and said
that conservation as outlined by Pin-
chot and Garfield would result in the ultimate good.

Was Not on Program.

The wordy battle between Mr. Hill
and the champions of the conservation policies came as a surprise. The tentative program called for short speeches only. Automobile trips about
the city were forgotten. The argument, although heated at times, was good-natured. Mr. Hill launched into
his attack on the conservation plans.
As a railroad man, he said, he was interested in the settlement of the west, but conservation under the Roosevelt administration had had a tendency to keep settlers out of the west. Great blocks of land had been withdrawn from settlement and were lying idle. The conservation of timber and of land might be a good
thing, he said, if the administration
used judgment in carrying out the
plans, but under the policy of
"blanket withdrawals," said Mr. Hill,
"the growth of the country is retarded, the choicest pieces of timber and land are taken from the people, and the growth of business is interrupted. The settlers suffer, he said.

Mr. Pinchot took up the cudgels for the conservation advocates. He explained that the administration (referring to the Roosevelt administration) in withdrawing timber lands
by the blanket withdrawal system
had worked upon information that
had been furnished it of plans of
large timber companies to grasp enormous tracts of valuable timber lands.
This land, he said, belonged to the people and should be apportioned
among as many as possible.

Blanket Withdrawal.

Whenever the administration learned of these contemplated "grabs," the power of the blanket withdrawal had
served to remove the tract or tracts
from settlement. Gradually, it had been the plan of the administration
to release this land in some way as
to prevent its seizure by the corporations. The corporation, he said, cared only for the timber. There was nothing in their plans of betterment
of the land for the future, and the individual settler was robbed.

Taking up Mr. Hill's statements
that the Pinchot policies had tended
to keep settlers out of the west, Mr.
Garfield entered a general denial. He explained the purpose of the government in withdrawing lands by the blanket withdrawal. He told of the action in the big conservation project
in Arizona where thousands of settlers, hearing of the government's
plans, had rushed into the district
which he said was to have been irrigated, had seized the lands, and
had been starved out before the plans
of the government had been carried
out. To prevent this, Mr. Garfield
said all such land was thereafter
withdrawn, the blanket withdrawal
was used and as the plans of the engineers reached completion the
lands would be opened.

Acknowledges His Error.

Mr. Hill then asked Mr. Pinchot
and Mr. Garfield closely as to their ideas and both gave extended expla-
nations.

Mr. Garfield admitted that immediate withdrawals, but maintained that
the plans would result in ultimate
good.

Mr. Hill then stated that he had never had the plans explained to him
as he had heard them from the lips
of Pinchot and Garfield, and admitted that they look good to him.

tuner, will be in Ada for a few days

A GREAT ARMY OF PRINTERS IN OKLAHOMA

People Appreciate Value of Publicity
in New State, a Mark of Progress.

Guthrie, Okla., June 11.—That value of publicity is properly appreciated in Oklahoma is shown by the fact that there are 509 printing and
publishing plants in the state, employing 2,536 people, with an annual
payroll of $1,575,828, and annual receipts of $3,411,663, according to the
figures compiled by Labor Commissioner Charles L. Daugherty.

Altogether $2,662,801 is invested in
the printing industry in Oklahoma,
including $1,694,524 in machinery, $372,448 in buildings and $186,007 in grounds. These figures are for the year 1909 and show a noteworthy
increase over 1908, when the total investment was $1,858,833. The total output for 1908 was $2,561,160,
against $3,411,663 last year.

The amount paid out last year for
material and supplies was $1,112,812
for rent, taxes and insurance, $159,- 591 and for wages $1,575,828; making
the fixed charges total $2,848,231, and
leaving a very fair margin for profits.
In 1908 the expenditures for material
and supplies were only $796,038 for
rent, taxes and insurance, $116,336
and for wages $1,197,877. The number employed was increased from 2,- 025 in 1908 to 2,536 last year, and the number of institutions from 442
to 508.

Highest Average of Wages.

The average of wages paid to
adult employees in the printing trade
is much higher than in any other industry. Altogether 1,397 male wage workers are employed, including 272
children under 16, and 907 of those
receive more than $12 per week.
There are 278 drawing between $12
and $15; 336 from $15 to $20; 215

that any attempt to move the records
or take other local action indicating
a removal of the seat of government
would be met by violence. While not alarmed over the situation, the governor, as a matter of precaution, he
said, established by order, through
Adj. Gen. Canton, a military guard
around the Logan county courthouse
in Guthrie, where a portion of the executive branch of the government
is housed. The orders are to place
in the guardhouse any one interfering with the transaction of business
or with the carrying out of any order issued from headquarters here.

Based upon this order was the governor's state to Sheriff Mahoney
that he "would be placed in the guard house."

Sheriff Mahoney told The News
correspondent that there had been
no attempts to interfere with the business of state; neither, he thought
would there be. The people there,
while stunned by the election result,
were relying, he said, upon having
their rights maintained by the courts.
He said service of the injunction had
been obtained upon State Auditor
Trapp, Superintendent Cameron,
State Treasurer Menefee, in Guthrie;
Secretary of State Cross here last night, and Gov. Haskell here tonight.

Gathering of Politicians.

There has been a gathering of
state politicians and State officials
in the Lee Hotel practically all of
today, and it has been freely predicted that the seat of government
would open here for business Monday morning.

A local committee has made preliminary arrangements for the old
High School Building, several squares
from the business center of the town,
for a portion of the state offices, others will be placed in the office buildings.

Commissioners Named.

The governor stated to a party of
friends calling this afternoon that acts of the Chief Executive were
good anywhere in the state.

"I do not suppose," he said, "anybody would refuse a pardon if one
were necessary, even though the governor was in Pummataha county
when it was signed and executed."

The governor also entertains the
view as expressed by Judge Fulton
that the act is already operative.
Oklahoma City is the seat of government and that the people can not
be restrained in the exercise of their political right. Attorneys for the governor have briefed the case, they say
and it is their holding that of the
law there can be no doubt.

Attorney General West arrived tonight and is in conference with the governor.

The governor stated tonight that
he was preparing to carry out terms
of the initiated act adopted yesterday and would probably name the
three State capitol commissioners
by the end of the week. Two of them will be Democrats and one a Republican, under terms of the bill.
In the hotel lobbies the names suggested are Tate Brady of Tulsa, National Democratic committeeman;
Otis B. Weaver, editor of the Ada
News; John B. Doolin of Alva, manager of Cruce's campaign three years
ago and later assistant treasurer
of the National Democratic committee under Gov. Haskell. State Senator
Beeler of Checotah is one of the Republicans mentioned.

Options on Land.

Options covering four tracts of
land, all situated outside the city
limits, are in the Governor's hands,
delivered by the Chamber of Commerce. It is planned to select one
as a capital site, and there erect a State house. The city organization's connection with the offers ended, it
is understood, with delivery to the Governor, but the options become
legally binding as soon as accepted
by the State. The preliminary offers do not prevent other options
from being tendered, which it is understood is to be done. The State
is not bound, it is stated, to accept
one of the four sites already submitted, but is at liberty to ignore
them for the new offerings.

President Sidney L. Brock of the Chamber of Commerce stated today
that he believed the majority for the State capital location bill would reach 30,000, while the estimate of others still place it as high as 50,- 000.

From 1,500 precincts out of a total of 2,500, the Daily Oklahoman
gives these results: For the bill 70,- 004, against 39,642; Oklahoma City
78,272, Shawnee 2,922 (does not include Shawnee's own vote), Guthrie
19,032.

For the railroad amendment 34,- 862, against 60,581. Total vote is estimated at 165,000.

Dorset Carter of Purcell tonight
admitted defeat of the railroad amen-

ment. When asked for the reason
he replied: "The voter appears to have listened to the demagogue instead of the sound business talker."

NORMAL STUDENTS INVADE CITY

Summer Term Bids Fair to be the Best in the State

The summer term of the East Central Normal began in earnest and in deed this morning with a splendid faculty of instructors and a big enrollment of students. Today is taken up in classification, and the assignment of lessons. Up till noon this morning over two hundred students were enrolled, which number does not include all who had arrived at that time. More are coming in all the time and indications point to a total attendance of four or five hundred.

The E. C. S. N. is being conducted on a plan that is sure to win in the out come. They do regular Normal work during the summer and stand for quality and not quantity in both work and numbers.

DON'T SPIT; YOU'D BETTER NOT

YOU HAVE FROM NOW TILL JUNE THE 20TH TO BREAK THE HABIT

If you have any spitting to do around the post office you had better do it between now and the 20th of this month. Just eight days after today. Postmaster Winn has instructions from Washington to enforce the city ordinances pertaining to the sanitary condition of the post office, which he will most assuredly do. Furthermore he will have the cooperation of the City Health officer. However, is willing to give the spitters a few days to break the habit. After June the 20th the first fellow who should forget himself so far as to expectorate on or about the building will be punished according to law.

Be careful, be descent.

Prof. McCurry Visits Home Folks.

WHAT A WOMAN CAN DO IN KANSAS

If there are any women anywhere who feel that their scope of activity is too seriously restricted by the laws of their state, let them go to Kansas. The good old Sunflower state just dotes on being nice to women and the laws of this commonwealth do nothing seriously to hamper the activities of women.

Just notice what a woman can do in Kansas if she wants to:

She can keep her own name when she gets married.

She can persuade her husband to give up his own, if she does not like her husband's name.

She can keep her own name and her husband can keep his, although she is married.

She can retain her maiden name for business transactions and take her husband's name for other purposes.

If the wife and husband are not satisfied with either name, they can take an entirely new name.

If the woman desires to wear real men's trousers, she can wear them.

She can not vote at a state or county election, but she can hold any state or county office.

In Kansas, none of these things is prohibited by law, as in many other states. Only custom prescribes that a woman take her husband's name when she is married to him or that she continue to wear skirts.

BUGGY TURNS OVER

Edna Shelby who lives in North Ada was driving along East 14th street Sunday morning and before crossing a bridge the vehicle bounded across a ditch throwing a little child who was with her off the seat. The girl catching at the baby pulled the horse too near the edge of the bridge. The buggy ran off the bridge breaking the fore wheel throwing the two children to the ground. They were not seriously hurt but were badly frightened. The horse being gentle though it had broken loose from the vehicle stopped a few feet away and patiently waited to be hitched up again.

WILL BRING HIM BACK TO PONTOTOC

Under Sheriff A. L. Miles left on the north bound Frisco Sunday morning for Dalton, Ga., where he goes to get John F. Ford, held by the authorities and who is wanted here on a charge of adultery. Ford it seems has been gone from this country a good while, but will be returned on requisition of the Governor of Oklahoma.

COON SELLS WHISKEY

E. Ubanks, a negro, who hangs out in the flats was arrested on charge of selling whiskey yesterday morning by Deputy Bill Adair. The coon was placed in jail for a few hours and was released on a $350 bond. His supply of booze, one pint and a half was confiscated. But it is alleged that they have a plain case against the negro when he comes to trial.

DOUG LASATER IN TOWN.

Mr. Douglas Lasater, manager of the Ada compress, who with his family is spending the summer in Sulphur Springs and Texas, is back at home a few days on business. "Dug" says that he is having lots of fun down at the boyhood home and that the fishing is fine. Last week he called Will Neathery over from Farmersville and with a little party went down on Caddo, close to Jefferson where there was caught a great abundance of game fish.

If it is a home in Ada you want. See the Weaver Agency.

MEMBERS OF SUMMER NORMAL FACULTY ARRIVE

Prof. J. Frank Lilly of Tishomingo arrived in Ada yesterday afternoon and takes his chair in the Normal today.

He expects to move his family to Ada as soon as he can find a suitable home. As a school man Prof. Lilly has few, if any, superiors in the state; and the city, as well as the Normal, is fortunate in having him permanently located here.

Prof. H. A. Bower, superintendent of the Ravia schools arrived yesterday also. He is one of the summer normal faculty and has for his subject, Oklahoma History. Prof. Bower is a strong teacher, having both the ability and successful experience.

Johnston county will alone furnish about one hundred students to the normal this summer. A good many eighth grade and High school students will take advantage of the review course.

Going Home

Though the members of the Fallow family are deeply attached to one another, they have carried to the superlative degree the theory of letting one another alone. Their idea is that the only way to be truly happy is not to be perpetually demanding information as to one another's movements and plans. The result is that no Falloway knows at all about the other Falloways.

This was why Sumner Falloway had a sudden idea in the middle of a golf game. He had been west for two months on business and was breaking off the traveling habit by degrees. Instead of landing in Chicago at once and immersing himself in work inside of 15 minutes, after the habit of most men, he had dropped off his train when it neared his golf club because the day was fine.

The idea which had clutched him while he was playing golf that day was that probably his father and mother had arrived home from their winter in California and the family house was open again. The elder Falloways were due at just about this time. If so, it would be a joy to go home instead of to the club, where he had lived while in town that winter.

Hastening indoors, he called his home telephone number, and after the usual delays was told cold-bloodedly by a meat market that it was not the Falloway residence. To be sure it might have the old Falloway telephone number, but nevertheless it was interested only in chops and steaks. Disgruntled, Sumner concluded that instead of going through the red tape of calling the information bureau he would save time by calling up the Bremers, who lived next door to the Falloway home.

When he got the Bremers there was nobody in but a foreign maid, who was hard of comprehension. Reducing his inquiries to simple form he learned from Freda that there were "people in the house next door," and sighed relievedly. It would be fine to see his father and mother again after so many months, and it would be pleasant to have his own roof over his wandering head once more.

Then he finished his golf game, had dinner with some friends, and, once more clutching his faithful suitcase, started for home.

There were no lights downstairs, but through the hall window on the second floor he could see the reflection from lights in the rear. Probably they were just beginning to get settled. Whistling he ran up the steps and tried his latch-key. The key turned, but the door was bolted inside. That was odd, so early in the evening, too!

Then he rang the bell. There was no answer. Suddenly he comprehended. In everybody's absence thieves were living there and sacking the house! Anyhow, he was going to see what was going on inside. He remembered a certain basement window that could be opened. Crawling in and sprawling on the coal pile, he stumbled carefully up to the ground floor and stealthily to the second.

The house seemed deserted and deadly still. But at the second floor landing he saw the light again, and on tiptoe he ventured toward it. The door of a bedroom was open, and he walked in. To all appearances he was in a hospital room. There were no rugs, curtains or frilleries, and the white-capped nurse who arose in alarm from her chair by the bed added the crowning touch. She and Sumner stared in astonishment at each other. "What's happened?" he gasped. "Nothing," said the nurse, a little crisply; "but scarlet fever is happening—didn't you know? What are you doing here?"

Then she told him the story. It seemed the Hopkines on the other side of the Falloways from the Bremers had a relative who had come to visit them, bringing her little boy and the little boy had brought along a case of scarlet fever. The Hopkines, possessing three small children on their own account, in their panic had begged from Sumner's brother Fred, who was married and lived elsewhere, the temporary use of the vacant Falloway house for their afflicted relative. As the elder Falloways had decided to stay away another month Fred had granted the Hopkines' request. The scarlet-fever boy, his mother and a nurse were occupying the quarantined Falloway home.

As it appeared, so did Sumner. When he, after an agonized and heated talk with the powers that be, learned that he was indeed at home and home to stay for quite a time, his remarks were vigorous and profuse.

At present he is still in quarantine, waiting to be fumigated and released. Daily, over the telephone with its new number, he reproaches his charitable brother Fred, who has an abominable sense of humor and so is not soothing to talk to!

Turkish Women and the Veil.

Turkish women do not wear veils because of their religion, as many suppose. It is merely the survival of an old custom. When the Turks still lived in Tartary, before the time of Mohammed, it was the habit of the men to steal such women for wives as attracted them. This led to so much fighting that about the second century after Christ the Turks came together and decided that henceforth the women should go veiled, and should not meet men, but should dwell in harems as soon as they arrived at womanhood—which was at about 11 years of age.

The Training of Simpkins

When Simpkins began calling at Paradise flat, which is the name Caroline and Edwina have given their girl bachelor apartment, his hostess agreed that he was rather a bore. But as time went on and he continued to come with marked regularity they both found him interesting, although they did not confide this fact to each other. On the contrary, they still spoke of him with good-natured derision and never for a moment owned that any elaboration of dress on the evenings he was expected had any connection with his visits.

There was something touching in the naive manner with which Simpkins consulted them on many little social points. He admitted that he had never had the opportunity of learning much about the intricacies of good form until he had the advantage of their acquaintance. So they began to feel that he was their mission.

"What colored necktie shall I wear with my new gray spring suit?" he asked one evening.

"A green one of a soft dull shade," suggested Edwina.

"I think a gray one, a little lighter tone than the suit, with a touch of red in it, will be much smarter," said Caroline.

"Gray and red is so commonplace," said Edwina.

"I don't think so," returned Caroline firmly.

Simpkins, after declaring that he would provide himself with neckties of both kinds, hastened to change the subject.

This difference of opinion was the beginning of many disagreements in regard to Simpkins. However, he continued to consult them and his path grew more smooth when they began to receive him separately. Caroline pleaded a headache on the night of one visit and Edwina was excused on account of fatigue on another evening. So it became the custom for only one girl to appear when he called.

On the day that Caroline happened upon Simpkins and Edwina lunching together downtown, she haughtily declined his invitation to join them. She also refused to see him that evening, though it was her turn to entertain him. She insisted that she had important letters to write.

The next morning when she started to her office, as usual, a few minutes later than Edwina, she found Simpkins loitering on the corner.

"This is Saturday, and I hope that you'll go to the matinee with me," said he so humbly that she could not find it in her heart to decline.

"Perhaps he doesn't prefer Edwina, after all," she told herself when they had parted. "If he accidentally met her downtown yesterday noon, very likely she gave him the opportunity to invite her to lunch. Even very nice girls do that sort of thing sometimes, though I should never have expected such forwardness of Edwina."

"Where were you this afternoon, Caroline?" asked Edwina that evening. "I thought you were coming home early."

"I did intend to, but I went to the matinee."

"Oh, I see," remarked Edwina with icy sweetness. "How very nice! I hope you enjoyed it?"

"Very much indeed, thank you." "Do you know, Caroline, I always think that a man who goes to the matinee is rather sissy. Goodness, there's the bell! You didn't expect him—any one, to night, did you?"

"Of course not. You know he was here last night."

"Well, it's his ring, anyway. Will you see him? You'll have to, for I have important letters to write."

When Caroline opened the door for the caller he said immediately that he wanted to see both of them. "I've got something to tell you that I want you both to hear," stumbingly announced Simpkins after Edwina had been summoned. "I tried to tell you, Miss Edwina, at lunch yesterday, but somehow I didn't succeed, and this afternoon I meant to tell you, Miss Caroline, at the matinee, but I couldn't, so I just made up my minds to run in tonight."

"You are awfully good friends of mine and I don't believe I should ever have gained my great happiness if it hadn't been for the splendid advice you have given me. I know you'll be glad to hear that I'm engaged to Mrs. Welby, my landlady."

"We hope you'll be very happy," said Edwina.

"I'm sure I shall," returned Simpkins fatuously, "and I shall tell her how grateful she must be to you two for making me anywhere near worthy of her. I'm sorry I can't stay longer, but she's expecting me."

"We wouldn't detain you for the world," said both girls at once. Then, scarcely waiting for the door to close behind their guest, they burst into the friendliest kind of laughter.

Let Me Enjoy.

Let me enjoy the earth no less Because the all-enacting Might
That fashioned forth its loveliness
Had other aims than mine delight.

About my path there fits a Fair,
Who throws me not a word or sign;
I will find charm in her uncared,
And laud those lips not meant for mine.

From manuscripts of moving song,
Inspired by scenes and souls unknown,
I'll pour out raptures that belong
To others, as they were my own.

Perhaps some day, toward Paradise
And all its bliss—if such should be—
I shall lift glad, afar-off eyes,
Though it contain no place for me.
—Thomas Hardy.

ENDING A QUARREL

There was not a bit of doubt that the young woman was angry. The more she thought it over the angrier she grew. It was inconceivable that a grown-up man could have been so foolish as to get up a quarrel with her over nothing at all—for that was what had happened the evening before.

She didn't in the least know what it was about, though she had a vivid recollection of his saying it was all her fault and of her insisting that it was his fault. He had had some weird idea that she had picked the quarrel herself out of curiosity as to what he would do. At this accusation she had passed from surprise through injury to anger. Now in broad daylight she felt certain that nothing on earth would tempt her to take one step toward reconciliation. She would stand on her dignity, inasmuch as she wasn't to blame.

Of course she felt rather sad about it, because she was aware that the man never would give in first and say he was sorry if he died for it and neither would she and naturally that meant the end of their friendship. Men did nothing but make one miserable anyway and she was tired of them.

She was hunting out a pamphlet on social settlement work and was resolving to devote her time in future to elevating the poor and worthy and appreciative when the postman rang the bell.

The man had written, in very black ink with pen strokes that shrieked emphasis, a long screed and had had the effrontery to send it to her. He had headed it, "An Essay on Woman, by a Cynic." She sat down and unfolded the sheets of paper with the tips of her disdainful fingers and started to read.

"Being a cynic," ran the document, "I can say anything I want to about a woman, and as I already have the reputation of being morose and churlish I can sink no deeper in the oblivion of feminine disapproval. Anyhow, what care I?"

"In starting a scientific and searching essay such as this we should first get it firmly fixed in our minds that a woman really is and the most descriptive words of her which I can think of at the present moment are 'doggone peculiar.'"

"Now, having conveyed to my readers a mental picture of a woman, so that if the reader should chance to be an inexperienced youth he will immediately cast his eyes elsewhere when in the presence of one and thus avoid a large amount of this world's troubles, I will proceed with my discussion."

"In speaking of a woman it does not pay to go too much into detail about her, for most of them are so different that it makes a detailed description impossible. In fact, I have known them to be different 460 times an hour. You may rest assured that in the matter of being different they are all alike."

"Now, what effect has this on man? I will tell you it makes cynics of us! I hurl this fact back at the feet of femininity, which when it wishes to cast aspersions on man calls him cynical! Cynical! If women carefully thought over this word they would not use it so gaily, for in reality it simply means wise—worldly wise! Yes, friends, we are wise to the women and this is what makes us cynical! Far be it from their intent to call us wise, though they might admit that we are worldly."

"I do not like to talk about woman this way behind her back, but we all know that we never would get a chance to talk if we didn't do it behind her back! Cynical! How that word describes my feelings this dark, gloomy day! My head is full of recollections of how a woman fed me compliments last evening until I swelled up and strutted around like a pigeon—and 30 minutes later I was nothing but a shift-eyed angworm waiting to be stepped on!"

"All for why? Because a foolish girl got tired of the plain sailing she had had for weeks and wanted to stir up a tempest! She wanted a nice little tempest, one that she could stop when she chose by waving a finger at it and murmuring: 'Stop, tempest!' So she began to rock the boat and whistle for rough weather. At last accounts the tempest was still on, though a good brand of oil judiciously applied sometimes has been known to calm raging waters. But it has to be a good quality and applied with a soothing touch."

She folded up the sheets of paper and then she laughed in spite of herself. When she stopped laughing she said something that sounded like "Perfect idiot!" Then she took down the telephone receiver.

"Hello!" she said when he answered. "Come out tonight and bring the tempest along—I'm going to stop it!"

Nature.

To speak truly, few adult persons can see nature. Most persons do not see the sun, at least they have a very superficial seeing. The sun illuminates only the eye and the heart of the child. The lover of nature is he whose inward and outward senses are still truly adjusted to each other; who has retained the spirit of infancy even into the era of manhood. His intercourse with heaven and earth becomes part of his daily food. In the presence of nature, a wild delight runs through the man, in spite of real sorrows. Nature says, he is my creature, and manure all his impertinent griefs, he shall be glad with me.

HASKELL DOES NOT RECOGNIZE COURT

REFUSES THE INJUNCTION PAPERS BROUGHT BY THE SHERIFF.

CAPITOL NOW OKLAHOMA CITY

Troops Stationed at Logan County Court House in Guthrie—Seal of State Removed.

Oklahoma City, Ok., June 12.—Gov. C. N. Haskell will not recognize authority of the Logan County District court to issue injunctions or restraining orders against him as chief executive of the state of Oklahoma.

Sheriff John Mahoney of Guthrie arrived on a late train tonight for the purpose of carrying out the court's order and secured service upon the governor in the matter of the injunction issued there last night.

Sheriff Makes Appearance. Gov. Haskell was seated in the parlor of the Lee Hotel, conversing with Dr. A. E. Davenport of Oklahoma City, when Sheriff Mahoney appeared with hat in one hand and with the other holding two documents. The governor was told that the papers were from the district court of Guthrie, replying to which the governor told the sheriff he had no authority to serve papers in this county, and the court had no authority to issue them against a governor.

Documents Fall to Floor.

The sheriff passed the documents to the governor as the latter spoke, but instead of taking them, he shoved them to one side. One of the documents fell to the floor, the other passed over the balustrade and flitted to the tiled lobby below.

Statement by Officer.

"The governor told me to get out," said Sheriff Mahoney, after he came down the stairs, "or that he would put me in the guard house. He said that the court would find itself there, too. I have nothing to do with what the court says. I was told to serve the papers, and did so."

"If the governor of Oklahoma wants to contest the issue with the district court, I am perfectly willing."

Uses Special Train.

Governor Haskell came to Oklahoma City early this morning, traveling in a special train from Tulsa, where he spoke last night and heard the election returns. He immediately announced that he was here to stay, and set up what people called the executive office in parlor D of the Lee hotel. During last night, after results of the election became known, W. B. Anthony of Marlow, private secretary to the governor, was dispatched to Guthrie by automobile and returned via the same conveyance, carrying the Governor's seal of state.

Secretary of state Bill Cross came with his seal last night.

Military Guard Established.

During the day there were a number of reports reaching the governor's rooms from persons in the employ of the State at Guthrie, expressing fear

CAPITOL LOCATION CARRIES BY 45,000

OKLA. CITY WINS BY BIG VOTE OVER SHAWNEE AND GUTHRIE

Railroad Amendment Defeated by Thirty-Five Thousand as All Late Returns Indicate

Oklahoma City, June 13.—The capitol location bill's majority in Saturday's election approximates 45,000. These figures are based on returns received Sunday from precincts not theretofore reported and from more complete returns received from several counties in that territory most friendly to the bill. Only one adverse report was received. It came from Delaware county, where 333 votes were cast for the bill and 781 against it. In that county, however, Oklahoma City received 231 votes, Shawnee 1, and Guthrie 162.

The total vote cast in Washita county for the bill was 1,822, and against it, 436. Oklahoma City received 2,249, Guthrie, 230, and Shawnee, 51. Twenty of the 20 precincts in Canadian county show 1,467 votes for the bill and 885 against. Oklahoma City received 1,599 votes, Shawnee, 21, and Guthrie 187. The total vote in Choctaw county for the bill was 1,284, and against it 392. Oklahoma City received 1,175, Shawnee, 35, and Guthrie 242.

The proposition to amend the constitution removing restrictions from railroads was defeated by 35,000 to 40,000.

Guthrie is said to claim that the bill is defeated, depending on a heavy rural vote in opposition. As a matter of fact, however, the returns are from both urban and rural precincts, and all later returns positively refute the contention. Shawnee is said to have conceded the defeat of the bill.

BIG WRECK AT CEMENT PLANT ON SUNDAY MORNING

FLY WHEEL BURSTS ASUNDER. SEVERAL MEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPE, 1 INJURED

Loss Will Run Into the Thousands. Several Weeks Before Plant Operates in Full Again

Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock there was a wreck at the Oklahoma Portland cement plant which came very near being disastrous when a big fly wheel sixteen feet in diameter burst asunder hurling its ponderous fragments with almost incredible violence.

The generator engine in the engine room from some unknown cause was running away. Messrs. Rodarmel, Smith, Curtis and H. Beck were at the engine trying to stop it when the wheel went to pieces. That they escaped unharmed is nothing short of miraculous. However, Mr. Rodarmel, the master mechanic, sustained a severe sprain of the ankle, supposedly caused by a piece of concrete, and Wm. Breeden, the boiler man came near being struck by a segment of the rim of the wheel which passed through the roof of the boiler room and stuck into the four inch concrete floor.

One piece, about one-eighth of the wheel, was hurled through the top of the west side of the engine room about thirty feet above the floor, bursting a great aperture in the wall, and landing about one hundred and thirty feet from the engine and on the ground between two of the buildings. Two other parts of the wheel were whirled through the same rent, one, a spoke, weighing several hundred pounds shooting through a wooden structure over a belt conveyor to the west of the engine room and still further away by several yards than the first fragment, the second a segment of the rim passed clear over the above mentioned building and fell about three hundred feet from the starting point. This piece missed everything so far as known and also fell on the ground. Still another division weighing six or seven hundred pounds shot straight up through the engine room and as it came down took a small corner off the very top of one of the one-hundred and thirty foot high boiler stacks. This was the same missile that stuck in the boiler room floor causing the injury to the boiler man. Yet a fifth part of the wheel flew up through the roof and

stuck in the floor of a belt run-way from the rock crusher, being projected about two hundred feet.

One more part struck the steam pipe connecting with this same engine bending the pipe and making it useless. But the larger portion of the fly-wheel did not leave its pit, on the other hand it beat about the bottom and sides of the pit breaking the steam exhaust pipe and oil and vent pipes.

Besides the loss of the wheel itself the material damage to the plant's building and machinery is small. Other engines in close proximity to the generator engine were unharmed, and as for that matter that one is not hurt excepting the fly wheel and pipe connections. It seems that every portion of the flying wheel had a well chosen spot to alight where damage would be least. If some of those steel projectiles would have struck a vital part of the machinery Ada perhaps would probably have been jarred to her foundation.

Mr. W. L. Whitaker, the superintendent, thinks heaven smiled profusely on them yesterday, for he remarked that Providence was taking care of the cement people.

While the damage and loss from the wreck will run into the thousands of dollars the greater part, it appears, will be from suspended operation, because it will be a matter of a good many weeks before operation in full is resumed. In the meantime the cement plant will use all the power available from the city electric plant.

While there were a great number of people, hearing of the disaster, visited the plant yesterday Mr. Whitaker, the superintendent, and W. S. Creveling, the chemist, sometimes had their patience taxed by questioners, but their good humored courtesy never failed them during the entire day.

IN REPUBLICAN MAINE

Will some opponent of an educational qualification for voting in democratic Oklahoma please give us his opinion of the following law of republican Maine.

AMENDMENT XXIX.
Constitution of Maine.
"No person shall have the right to vote or be eligible to office under the constitution of this state, who shall not be able to read the constitution in the English language and write his name; provided, however, that the provisions of this amendment shall not apply to any person prevented by a physical disability from complying with its requisitions, nor to any person who now has the right to vote, nor to any person who shall be sixty years of age or upwards at the time this amendment shall take effect."

(The twenty-ninth amendment was proposed to the people by a resolve of the Sixty-fourth Legislature; approved April 2, 1891; adopted September 12, 1892; proclaimed by Governor Burleigh December 13, 1892, and took effect on the first Wednesday of January, 1893.)

The "Grandfather Clause" is to the people of our western counties a matter of keen political interest. To the counties of central Oklahoma it is a great political issue. But to the counties of the East side it is a matter of life and death.

Oklahoma City must command the sincerest admiration of every citizen in the state who has the Oklahoma spirit.

The gilt edge but sensational removal of Oklahoma's State Capitol within one night is the wonder of the nation.

Isn't that man Haskell a Ulysses?

GRANDFATHER CLAUSE UP TO VOTERS

PROCLAMATION WILL BE ISSUED TODAY BY CROSS, DATE OF VOTING AUGUST 2.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 12.—There will be filed by Secretary of State Cross tomorrow a proclamation submitting the so-called grandfather clause, recently initiated by a vote of the people, on August 2.

The proclamation, it develops, was executed and signed by Gov. Haskell at Sulphur Thursday last, although that fact did not become public until today. An alternative writ of mandamus was issued by Judge Huston of the Logan County District Court some days ago, requiring Secretary of State Cross to give date for hearing protests within five days of June 7 or make answer on June 17, in Guthrie.

Secretary Cross insists that he has not been served with the process and in the court proceedings will not be recognized.

August 2 when the grandfather clause goes to a vote, is also the primary election date and if adopted, it is planned to enforce its provisions for the November election.

The proposition is submitted as an amendment to the suffrage article of the Constitution and proposes that all persons whose ancestors prior to Jan. 1, 1866, did not have the right of suffrage under some form of Government, shall be required to be able to read and write. Protests against the petitions were made before the Secretary of State by the Republican and Socialists State Committees, claiming that the hearing the Secretary gave was premature.

PINCHOT CONVERTS R. R. PRESIDENT

THREE HOUR DISCUSSION WITH HILL OF THE GREAT NORTHERN.

INCIDENT WAS A SURPRISE

At Minnesota Club Banquet Deposed Chief Forester Takes Up Cudgel for Conservation.

St. Paul, Minn., June 11.—Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, and, therefore, one of the most radical and outspoken opponents of the Roosevelt-Pinchot policy of reclamation and conservation has become a convert to the plans started by the Roosevelt administration.

Three-Hour Discussion.
For three hours yesterday, Hill, Gifford, Pinchot and James H. Garfield discussed the question at a Minnesota Club luncheon. Mr. Hill attacking the conservation policies on the grounds that they resulted in keeping settlers out of the Western country, and Pinchot and Garfield defending the withdrawal of lands from settlement.

In the end Mr. Hill admitted that he had been misinformed, and said that conservation as outlined by Pinchot and Garfield would result in the ultimate good.

Was Not on Program.

The wordy battle between Mr. Hill and the champions of the conservation policies came as a surprise. The tentative program called for short speeches only. Automobile trips about the city were forgotten. The argument, although heated at times, was good-natured. Mr. Hill launched into his attack on the conservation plans. As a railroad man, he said, he was interested in the settlement of the west, but conservation under the Roosevelt administration had had a tendency to keep settlers out of the west. Great blocks of land had been withdrawn from settlement and were lying idle. The conservation of timber and of land might be a good thing, he said, if the administration used judgment in carrying out the plans, but under the policy of "blanket withdrawals," said Mr. Hill, "the growth of the country is retarded, the choicest pieces of timber and land are taken from the people, and the growth of business is interrupted. The settlers suffer, he said.

Mr. Pinchot took up the cudgels for the conservation advocates. He explained that the administration (referring to the Roosevelt administration) in withdrawing timber lands by the blanket withdrawal system had worked upon information that had been furnished it of plans of large timber companies to grasp enormous tracts of valuable timber lands. This land, he said, belonged to the people and should be apportioned among as many as possible.

Blanket Withdrawal.

Whenever the administration learned of these contemplated "grabs," the power of the blanket withdrawal had served to remove the tract or tracts from settlement. Gradually, it had been the plan of the administration to release this land in some way as to prevent its seizure by the corporations. The corporation, he said, cared only for the timber. There was nothing in their plans of betterment of the land for the future, and the individual settler was robbed.

Taking up Mr. Hill's statements that the Pinchot policies had tended to keep settlers out of the west, Mr. Garfield entered a general denial. He explained the purpose of the government in withdrawing lands by the blanket withdrawal. He told of the action in the big conservation project in Arizona where thousands of settlers, hearing of the government's plans, had rushed into the district which he said was to have been irrigated, had seized the lands, and had been starved out before the plans of the government had been carried out. To prevent this, Mr. Garfield said all such land was thereafter withdrawn, the blanket withdrawal was used and as the plans of the engineers reached completion the lands would be opened.

Acknowledges His Error.

Mr. Hill then asked Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Garfield closely as to their ideas and both gave extended explanations.

Mr. Garfield admitted that immediate withdrawals, but maintained that the plans would result in ultimate good.

Mr. Hill then stated that he had never had the plans explained to him as he had heard them from the lips of Pinchot and Garfield, and admitted that they look good to him.

A GREAT ARMY OF PRINTERS IN OKLAHOMA

People Appreciate Value of Publicity in New State, a Mark of Progress.

Guthrie, Okla., June 11.—That value of publicity is properly appreciated in Oklahoma is shown by the fact that there are 509 printing and publishing plants in the state, employing 2,536 people, with an annual payroll of $1,575,828, and annual receipts of $3,411,683, according to the figures compiled by Labor Commissioner Charles L. Daugherty.

Altogether $2,862,801 is invested in the printing industry in Oklahoma, including $1,694,524 in machinery, $372,448 in buildings and $186,007 in grounds. These figures are for the year 1909 and show a noteworthy increase over 1908, when the total investment was $1,858,833. The total output for 1909 was $2,561,169, against $3,411,683 last year.

The amount paid out last year for material and supplies was $1,112,512 for rent, taxes and insurance, $159,591 and for wages $1,575,828; making the fixed charges total $2,848,231, and leaving a very fair margin for profits. In 1908 the expenditures for material and supplies were only $796,038 for rent, taxes and insurance, $116,336 and for wages $1,197,877. The number employed was increased from 2,025 in 1908 to 2,536 last year, and the number of institutions from 442 to 508.

Highest Average of Wages.

The average of wages paid to adult employees in the printing trade is much higher than in any other industry. Altogether 1,397 male wage workers are employed, including 272 children under 16, and 907 of those receive more than $12 per week. There are 278 drawing between $12 and $15; 336 from $15 to $20; 215 from $20 to $25, and 78 over $25 per week. The 352 women wage workers average considerably less than the men, and most of the children receive less than $4 per week, the highest wage paid in that class being $7. Only 41 women out of the 352 receive more than $12 per week, and only 2 get more than $20.

There are also 440 salaried male employees engaged in management or clerical work, and 65 female employees in that class, in addition to 536 working owners. The male salesmen get the best salaries of anyone in that class, averaging $103.20 per month. Managers and superintendents average $95.30, foremen $83.88 and bookkeepers $75.48, while the working owners only averaged $69.22. Male stenographers averaged $60.90, and male bookkeepers $51.25, while female bookkeepers received $54.16, stenographers $50.39, clerks $34.30 and saleswomen $38.27.

There are 52 editors on the payroll of the various papers and 105 reporters, 94 of them men and 11 women.

HASKELL DOES NOT RECOGNIZE COURT

that any attempt to move the records or take other local action indicating a removal of the seat of government would be met by violence. While not alarmed over the situation, the governor, as a matter of precaution, he said, established by order, through Adj. Gen. Canton, a military guard around the Logan county courthouse in Guthrie, where a portion of the executive branch of the government is housed. The orders are to place in the guardhouse any one interfering with the transaction of business or with the carrying out of any order issued from headquarters here.

Based upon this order was the governor's state to Sheriff Mahoney that he "would be placed in the guardhouse."

Sheriff Mahoney told The News correspondent that there had been no attempts to interfere with the business of state; neither, he thought would there be. The people there, while stunned by the election result, were relying, he said, upon having their rights maintained by the courts. He said service of the injunction had been obtained upon State Auditor Trapp, Superintendent Cameron, State Treasurer Menefee, in Guthrie; Secretary of State Cross here last night, and Gov. Haskell here tonight.

Gathering of Politicians.

There has been a gathering of state politicians and State officials in the Lee Hotel practically all of today, and it has been freely predicted that the seat of government would open here for business Monday morning.

A local committee has made preliminary arrangements for the old High School Building, several squares from the business center of the town, for a portion of the state offices. Others will be placed in the office buildings.

Commissioners Named.

The governor stated to a party of friends calling this afternoon that acts of the Chief Executive were good anywhere in the state. "I do not suppose," he said, "anybody would refuse a pardon if one were necessary, even though the governor was in Puskmatata county when it was signed and executed."

The governor also entertains the view as expressed by Judge Fulton that the act is already operative, Oklahoma City is the seat of government and that the people can not be restrained in the exercise of their political right. Attorneys for the governor have briefed the case, they say and it is their holding that of the law there can be no doubt.

Attorney General West arrived tonight and is in conference with the governor.

The governor stated tonight that he was preparing to carry out terms of the initiated act adopted yesterday and would probably name the three State capitol commissioners by the end of the week. Two of them will be Democrats and one a Republican, under terms of the bill. In the hotel lobbies the names suggested are Tate Brady of Tulsa, National Democratic committeeman; Otis B. Weaver, editor of the Ada News; John B. Doolin of Alva, manager of Cruce's campaign three years ago and later assistant treasurer of the National Democratic committee under Gov. Haskell. State Senator Beeler of Checotah is one of the Republicans mentioned.

Options on Land.

Options covering four tracts of land, all situated outside the city limits, are in the Governor's hands, delivered by the Chamber of Commerce. It is planned to select one as a capital site, and there erect a State house. The city organization's connection with the offers ended, it is understood, with delivery to the Governor, but the options become legally binding as soon as accepted by the State. The preliminary offers do not prevent other options from being tendered, which it is understood is to be done. The State is not bound, it is stated, to accept one of the four sites already submitted, but is at liberty to ignore them for the new offerings.

President Sidney L. Brock of the Chamber of Commerce stated today that he believed the majority for the State capital location bill would reach 30,000, while the estimate of others still place it as high as 50,000.

From 1,500 precincts out of a total of 2,500, the Daily Oklahoman gives these results: For the bill 70,004, against 39,642; Oklahoma City 78,272, Shawnee 2,922 (does not include Shawnee's own vote), Guthrie 19,932.

For the railroad amendment 34,862, against 60,681. Total vote is estimated at 165,000.

Dorset Carter of Purcell tonight admitted defeat of the railroad amen-

ment. When asked for the reason he replied: "The voter appears to have listened to the demagogue instead of the sound business talker."

Misses Sue Chisler and Minnie Stone attended children's day exercises at Oakman yesterday.

WHAT A WOMAN CAN DO IN KANSAS

If there are any women anywhere who feel that their scope of activity is too seriously restricted by the laws of their state, let them go to Kansas. The good old Sunflower state just dotes on being nice to women and the laws of this commonwealth do nothing seriously to hamper the activities of women.

Just notice what a woman can do in Kansas if she wants to: She can keep her own name when she gets married. She can persuade her husband to give up his own, if she does not like her husband's name. She can keep her own name and her husband can keep his, although she is married. She can retain her maiden name for business transactions and take her husband's name for other purposes. If the wife and husband are not satisfied with either name, they can take an entirely new name. If the woman desires to wear real men's trousers, she can wear them. She can not vote at a state or county election, but she can hold any state or county office. In Kansas, none of these things is prohibited by law, as in many other states. Only custom prescribes that a woman take her husband's name when she is married to him or that she continue to wear skirts.

BUGGY TURNS OVER

Edna Shelby who lives in North Ada was driving along East 14th street Sunday morning and before crossing a bridge the vehicle bounded across a ditch throwing a little child who was with her off the seat. The girl catching at the baby pulled the horse too near the edge of the bridge. The buggy ran off the bridge breaking the fore wheel throwing the two children to the ground. They were not seriously hurt but were badly frightened. The horse being gentle though it had broken loose from the vehicle stopped a few feet away and patiently waited to be hitched up again.

WILL BRING HIM BACK TO PONTOTOC

Under Sheriff A. L. Miles left on the north bound Frisco Sunday morning for Dalton, Ga., where he goes to get John F. Ford, held by the authorities and who is wanted here on a charge of adultery. Ford it seems has been gone from this country a good while, but will be returned on requisition of the Governor of Oklahoma.

COON SELLS WHISKEY

E. Ubanks, a negro, who hangs out in the flats was arrested on charge of selling whiskey yesterday morning by Deputy Bill Adair. The coon was placed in jail for a few hours and was released on a $350 bond. His supply of booze, one pint and a half was confiscated. But it is alleged that they have a plain case against the negro when he comes to trial.

DOUG LASATER IN TOWN.

Mr. Douglas Lasater, manager of the Ada compress, who with his family is spending the summer in Sulphur Springs and Texas, is back at home a few days on business. "Dug" says that he is having lots of fun down at the boyhood home and that the fishing is fine. Last week he called Will Neathery over from Farmersville and with a little party went down on Caddo, close to Jefferson where there was caught a great abundance of game fish.

If it is a home in Ada you want. See the Weaver Agency.

MEMBERS OF SUMMER NORMAL FACULTY ARRIVE

Prof. J. Frank Lilly of Tishomingo arrived in Ada yesterday afternoon and takes his chair in the Normal today.

He expects to move his family to Ada as soon as he can find a suitable home. As a school man Prof. Lilly has few, if any, superiors in the state; and the city, as well as the Normal, is fortunate in having him permanently located here.

Prof. H. A. Bower, superintendent of the Ravia schools arrived yesterday also. He is one of the summer normal faculty and has for his subject, Oklahoma History. Prof. Bower is a strong teacher, having both the ability and successful experience. Johnston county will alone furnish about one hundred students to the normal this summer. A good many eighth grade and High school students will take advantage of the review course.

HASKELL DOES NOT RECOGNIZE COURT

REFUSES THE INJUNCTION PAPERS BROUGHT BY THE SHERIFF.

CAPITOL NOW OKLAHOMA CITY

Troops Stationed at Logan County Court House in Guthrie—Seal of State Removed.

Oklahoma City, Ok., June 12.—Gov. C. N. Haskell will not recognize authority of the Logan County District court to issue injunctions or restraining orders against him as chief executive of the state of Oklahoma.

Sheriff John Mahoney of Guthrie arrived on a late train tonight for the purpose of carrying out the court's order and secured service upon the governor in the matter of the injunction issued there last night.

Sheriff Makes Appearance.

Gov. Haskell was seated in the parlor of the Lee Hotel, conversing with Dr. A. E. Davenport of Oklahoma City, when Sheriff Mahoney appeared with hat in one hand and with the other holding two documents. The governor was told that the papers were from the district court of Guthrie, replying to which the governor told the sheriff he had no authority to serve papers in this county, and the court had no authority to issue them against a governor.

Documents Fall to Floor.

The sheriff passed the documents to the governor as the latter spoke, but instead of taking them, he shoved them to one side. One of the documents fell to the floor, the other passed over the balustrade and fitted to the tiled lobby below.

Statement by Officer.

"The governor told me to get out," said Sheriff Mahoney, after he came down the stairs, "or that he would put me in the guard house. He said that the court would find itself there, too. I have nothing to do with what the court says. I was told to serve the papers, and did so."

"If the governor of Oklahoma wants to contest the issue with the district court, I am perfectly willing."

Uses Special Train.

Governor Haskell came to Oklahoma City early this morning, traveling in a special train from Tulsa, where he spoke last night and heard the election returns. He immediately announced that he was here to stay, and set up what people called the executive office in parlor D of the Lee hotel. During last night, after results of the election became known, W. B. Anthony of Marlow, private secretary to the governor, was dispatched to Guthrie by automobile and returned via the same conveyance, carrying the Governor's seal of state.

Secretary of state Bill Cross came with his seal last night.

Military Guard Established.

During the day there were a number of reports reaching the governor's rooms from persons in the employ of the State at Guthrie, expressing fear

CAPITOL LOCATION CARRIES BY 45,000

OKLA. CITY WINS BY BIG VOTE. OVER SHAWNEE AND GUTHRIE.

Railroad Amendment Defeated by Thirty-Five Thousand as All Late Returns Indicate.

Oklahoma City, June 13.—The capitol location bill's majority in Saturday's election approximates 45,000. These figures are based on returns received Sunday from precincts not theretofore reported and from more complete returns received from several counties in that territory most friendly to the bill. Only one adverse report was received. It came from Delaware county, where 333 votes were cast for the bill and 781 against it. In that county, however, Oklahoma City received 231 votes, Shawnee 1, and Guthrie 162.

The total vote cast in Washita county for the bill was 1,822, and against it, 436. Oklahoma City received 2,249, Guthrie, 230, and Shawnee, 51. Twenty of the 20 precincts in Canadian county show 1,467 votes for the bill and 885 against Oklahoma City received 1,599 votes, Shawnee, 21, and Guthrie 185. The total vote in Choctaw county for the bill was 1,284, and against it 332. Oklahoma City received 1,175, Shawnee, 35, and Guthrie 242.

The proposition to amend the constitution removing restrictions from railroads was defeated by 35,000 to 40,000.

Guthrie is said to claim that the bill is defeated, depending on a heavy rural vote in opposition. As a matter of fact, however, the returns are from both urban and rural precincts, and all later returns positively refute the contention. Shawnee is said to have conceded the defeat of the bill.

BIG WRECK AT CEMENT PLANT ON SUNDAY MORNING

FLY WHEEL BURSTS ASUNDER. SEVERAL MEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPE, 1 INJURED.

Loss Will Run Into the Thousands. Several Weeks Before Plant Operates in Full Again.

Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock there was a wreck at the Oklahoma Portland cement plant which came very near being disastrous when a big fly wheel sixteen feet in diameter burst asunder hurling its ponderous fragments with almost incredible violence.

The generator engine in the engine room from some unknown cause was running away. Messrs. Rodarmel, Smith, Curtis and H. Beck were at the engine trying to stop it when the wheel went to pieces. That they escaped uninjured is nothing short of miraculous. However, Mr. Rodarmel, the master mechanic, sustained a severe sprain of the ankle, supposedly caused by a piece of concrete, and Wm. Breeden, the boiler man came near being struck by a segment of the rim of the wheel which passed through the roof of the boiler room and stuck into the four inch concrete floor.

One piece, about one-eighth of the wheel, was hurled through the top of the west side of the engine room about thirty feet above the floor, bursting a great aperture in the wall, and landing about one hundred and thirty feet from the engine and on the ground between two of the buildings. Two other parts of the wheel were whirled through the same rent, one, a spoke, weighing several hundred pounds shooting through a wooden structure over a belt conveyor to the west of the engine room and still further away by several yards than the first fragment, the second a segment of the rim passed clear over the above mentioned building and fell about three hundred feet from the starting point. This piece missed everything so far as known and also fell on the ground. Still another division weighing six or seven hundred pounds shot straight up through the engine room and as it came down took a small corner off the very top of one of the one-hundred and thirty foot high boiler stacks. This was the same misadventure that stuck in the boiler room floor causing the injury to the boiler man. Yet a fifth part of the wheel flew up through the roof and

stuck in the floor of a belt run-way from the rock crusher, being projected about two hundred feet.

One more part struck the steam pipe connecting with this same engine bending the pipe and making it useless. But the larger portion of the fly-wheel did not leave its pit, on the other hand it beat about the bottom and sides of the pit breaking the steam exhaust pipe and oil and vent pipes.

Besides the loss of the wheel itself the material damage to the plant's building and machinery is small. Other engines in close proximity to the generator engine were unharmed, and as for that matter that one is not hurt excepting the fly wheel and pipe connections it seems that every portion of the flying wheel had a well chosen spot to alight where damage would be least. If some of those steel projectiles would have struck a vital part of the machinery Ada perhaps would probably have been jarred to her foundation.

Mr. W. L. Whitaker, the superintendent, thinks heaven smiled propitiously on them yesterday, for he remarked that Providence was taking care of the cement people.

While the damage and loss from the wreck will run into the thousands of dollars the greater part, it appears, will be from suspended operation, because it will be a matter of a good many weeks before operation in full is resumed. In the meantime the cement plant will use all the power available from the city electric plant.

While there were a great number of people, hearing of the disaster, visited the plant yesterday Mr. Whitaker, the superintendent, and W. E. Creveling, the chemist, sometimes had their patience taxed by questioners, but their good humored courtesy never failed them during the entire day.

ter of keen political interest. To the
counties of central Oklahoma it is a great political issue. But to the counties of the East side it is a matter of life and death.

Oklahoma City must command the sincerest admiration of every citizen in the state who has the Oklahoma spirit.

The gilt edge but sensational removal of Oklahoma's State Capitol
within one night is the wonder of
the nation.

GRANDFATHER CLAUSE UP TO VOTERS

TODAY BY CROSS. DATE OF
VOTING AUGUST 2.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 12.—
There will be filed by Secretary of State Cross tomorrow a proclamation
submitting the so-called grandfather
clause, recently initiated by a vote
of the people, on August 2.

The proclamation, it develops, was
executed and signed by Gov. Haskell
at Sulphur Thursday last, although
that fact did not become public until today. An alternative writ of
mandamus was issued by Judge Hus-
ton of the Logan County District
Court some days ago, requiring Secretary of State Cross to give date
for hearing protests within five days
of June 7 or make answer on June 17, in Guthrie.

Secretary Cross insists that he has
not been served with the process and
in the court proceedings will not be recognized.

August 2 when the grandfather
clause goes to a vote, is also the
primary election date and if adopted,
it is planned to enforce its provisions for the November election.

The proposition is submitted as an
amendment to the suffrage article
of the Constitution and proposes that
all persons whose ancestors prior to
Jan. 1, 1866 (did not have the right
of suffrage under some form of Government, shall be required to be able
to read and write. Protests against
the petitions were made before the Secretary of State by the Republican
and Socialists State Committees,
claiming that the hearing the Secretary gave was premature.

PINCHOT CONVERTS R. R. PRESIDENT

HILL OF THE GREAT NORTHERN.

INCIDENT WAS A SURPRISE

At Minnesota Club Banquet Deposed
Chief Forester Takes Up Cud-
gel for Conservation.

St. Paul, Minn., June 11.—Louis W.
Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, and, therefore, one of
the most radical and outspoken opponents of the Roosevelt-Pinchot policy of reclamation and conservation
has become a convert to the plans
started by the Roosevelt administration.

Three-Hour Discussion.
For three hours yesterday, Hill,
Gifford, Pinchot and James H. Gar-
field discussed the question at a Minnesota Club luncheon. Mr. Hill
attacking the conservation policies
on the grounds that they resulted
in keeping settlers out of the Western country, and Pinchot and Gar-
field defending the withdrawal of
lands from settlement.

In the end Mr. Hill admitted that
he had been misinformed, and said
that conservation as outlined by Pin-
chot and Garfield would result in the ultimate good.

Was Not on Program.

The wordy battle between Mr. Hill
and the champions of the conservation policies came as a surprise. The
tentative program called for short
speeches only. Automobile trips about
the city were forgotten. The argument, although heated at times, was good-natured. Mr. Hill launched into
his attack on the conservation plans.
As a railroad man, he said, he was
interested in the settlement of the
west, but conservation under the Roosevelt administration had had a tendency to keep settlers out of the west. Great blocks of land had been withdrawn from settlement and were lying idle. The conservation of timber and of land might be a good
thing, he said, if the administration
used judgment in carrying out the
plans, but under the policy of
"blanket withdrawals," said Mr. Hill,
"the growth of the country is re-
tarded, the choicest pieces of timber and land are taken from the
people, and the growth of business is interrupted. The settlers suffer," he said.

Mr. Pinchot took up the cudgels for
the conservation advocates. He explained that the administration (referring to the Roosevelt administration) in withdrawing timber lands
had worked upon information that
had been furnished it of plans of
large timber companies to grasp enormous tracts of valuable timber lands.
This land, he said, belonged to the
people and should be apportioned
among as many as possible.

Blanket Withdrawal.

Whenever the administration learned of these contemplated "grabs," the power of the blanket withdrawal had
served to remove the tract or tracts
from settlement. Gradually, it had
been the plan of the administration
to release this land in some way as
to prevent its seizure by the corporations. The corporation, he said, card only for the timber. There was nothing in their plans of betterment
of the land for the future, and the
individual settler was robbed.

Taking up Mr. Hill's statements
that the Pinchot policies had tended
to keep settlers out of the west, Mr.
Garfield entered a general denial. He
explained the purpose of the government in withdrawing lands by the
blanket withdrawal. He told of the action in the big conservation project
in Arizona where thousands of settlers, hearing of the government's
plans, had rushed into the district
which he said was to have been irrigated, had seized the lands, and
had been starved out before the plans
of the government had been carried
out. To prevent this, Mr. Garfield
said all such land was thereafter
withdrawn, the blanket withdrawal
was used and as the plans of the
engineers reached completion the
lands would be opened.

Acknowledges His Error.

Mr. Hill then asked Mr. Pinchot
and Mr. Garfield closely as to their ideas and both gave extended expla-
nations.

Mr. Garfield admitted that immediate withdrawals, but maintained that
the plans would result in ultimate
good.

Mr. Hill then stated that he had never had the plans explained to him
as he had heard them from the lips
of Pinchot and Garfield, and admitted that they look good to him.

A GREAT ARMY OF PRINTERS IN OKLAHOMA

People Appreciate Value of Publicity
in New State, a Mark of Progress.

Guthrie, Okla., June 11.—That value of publicity is properly appreciated in Oklahoma is shown by the
fact that there are 509 printing and
publishing plants in the state, employing 2,536 people, with an annual
payroll of $1,575,828, and annual receipts of $3,411,663, according to the
figures compiled by Labor Commissioner Charles L. Daugherty.

Altogether $2,662,801 is invested in
the printing industry in Oklahoma,
including $1,894,524 in machinery,
$372,448 in buildings and $186,007 in
grounds. These figures are for the
year 1908 and show a noteworthy
increase over 1908, when the total investment was $1,858,333. The total output for 1908 was $2,561,160,
against $3,411,663 last year.

The amount paid out last year for
material and supplies was $1,112,512
for rent, taxes and insurance, $159,- 591 and for wages $1,575,828; making
the fixed charges total $2,848,231, and
leaving a very fair margin for profits.
In 1908 the expenditures for material
and supplies were only $796,038 for
rent, taxes and insurance, $116,386
and for wages $1,197,877. The number employed was increased from 2,- 025 in 1908 to 2,536 last year, and
the number of institutions from 442
to 509.

Highest Average of Wages.

The average of wages paid to
adult employees in the printing trade
is much higher than in any other industry. Altogether 1,397 male wage
workers are employed, including 272
children under 16, and 907 of those
receive more than $12 per week.
There are 278 drawing between $12
and $15; 336 from $15 to $20; 215
from $20 to $25, and 78 over $25 per week. The 352 women wage workers average considerably less than the men, and most of the children receive less than $4 per week, the highest wage paid in that class being $7.
Only 41 women out of the 352 receive more than $12 per week, and only 2 get more than $20.

There are also 440 salaried male employees engaged in management or clerical work, and 95 female employees
in that class, in addition to 536 working owners. The male salesmen get the best salaries of anyone in that class, averaging $103.20 per month.
Managers and superintendents average $85.30, foremen $83.88 and bookkeepers $75.48, while the working owners only averaged $69.22. Male stenographers averaged $60.30, and male bookkeepers $51.25, while female bookkeepers received $54.16, stenographers $50.39, clerks $34.30
and saleswomen $38.27.

There are 52 editors on the payroll
of the various papers and 105 reporters, 94 of them men and 11 women.

HASKELL DOES NOT RECOGNIZE COURT

that any attempt to move the records
or take other local action indicating
a removal of the seat of government
would be met by violence. While not
alarmed over the situation, the governor, as a matter of precaution, he
said, established by order, through
Adj. Gen. Canton, a military guard
around the Logan county courthouse
in Guthrie, where a portion of the
executive branch of the government
is housed. The orders are to place
in the guardhouse any one interfer-
ing with the transaction of business
or with the carrying out of any order issued from headquarters here.

Based upon this order was the governor's state to Sheriff Mahoney
that he "would be placed in the
guard house."

Sheriff Mahoney told The News
correspondent that there had been
no attempts to interfere with the
business of state; neither, he thought
would there be. The people there,
while stunned by the election result,
were relying, he said, upon having
their rights maintained by the courts.
He said service of the injunction had
been obtained upon State Auditor
Trapp, Superintendent Cameron,
State Treasurer Menefee, in Guthrie;
Secretary of State Cross here last night, and Gov. Haskell here tonight.

Gathering of Politicians.

There has been a gathering of
state politicians and State officials
in the Lee Hotel practically all of
today, and it has been freely predicted that the seat of government
would open here for business Mon-
day morning.

A local committee has made preliminary arrangements for the old
High School Building, several squares
from the business center of the town,
for a portion of the state offices. others will be placed in the office buildings.

Commissioners Named.

The governor stated to a party of
friends calling this afternoon that
acts of the Chief Executive were
good anywhere in the state.

"I do not suppose," he said, "any-
body would refuse a pardon if one
were necessary, even though the governor was in Pasmataha county
when it was signed and executed."

The governor also entertains the
view as expressed by Judge Fulton
that the act is already operative,
Oklahoma City is the seat of government and that the people can not
be restrained in the exercise of their political right. Attorneys for the governor have briefed the case, they say
and it is their holding that of the
law there can be no doubt.

Attorney General West arrived tonight and is in conference with the governor.

The governor stated tonight that
he was preparing to carry out terms
of the initiated act adopted yester-
day and would probably name the
three State capitol commissioners
by the end of the week. Two of them will be Democrats and one a Republican, under terms of the bill.
In the hotel lobbies the names suggested are Tate Brady of Tulsa, National Democratic committeeman;
Otis B. Weaver, editor of the Ada
News; John B. Doolin of Alva, manager of Cruce's campaign three years
ago and later assistant treasurer
of the National Democratic committee
under Gov. Haskell. State Senator
Beeler of Checotah is one of the Republicans mentioned.

Options on Land.

Options covering four tracts of
land, all situated outside the city
limits, are in the Governor's hands,
delivered by the Chamber of Commerce. It is planned to select one
as a capital site, and there erect a State house. The city organization's
connection with the offers ended, it
is understood, with delivery to the Governor, but the options become
legally binding as soon as accepted
by the State. The preliminary offers do not prevent other options
from being tendered, which it is understood is to be done. The State
is not bound, it is stated, to accept
one of the four sites already submitted, but is at liberty to ignore
them for the new offerings.

President Sidney L. Brock of the Chamber of Commerce stated today
that he believed the majority for the State capital location bill would
reach 30,000, while the estimate of
others still place it as high as 50,- 000.

From 1,500 precincts out of a total of 2,500, the Daily Oklahoman
gives these results: For the bill 70,- 004, against 39,642; Oklahoma City
78,272, Shawnee 2,922 (does not include Shawnee's own vote), Guthrie
19,932.

For the railroad amendment 34,- 862, against 60,581. Total vote is estimated at 165,000.

Dorset Carter of Purcell tonight
admitted defeat of the railroad amen-

ment. When asked for the reason
he replied: "The voter appears to
have listened to the demagogue instead of the sound business talker."

Misses Sue Chisler and Minnie

Summer Term Bids Fair to be the Best in the State

The summer term of the East Central Normal began in earnest and in deed this morning with a splendid faculty of instructors and a big enrollment of students. Today is taken up in classification, and the assignment of lessons. Up till noon this morning over two hundred students were enrolled, which number does not include all who had arrived at that time. More are coming in all the time and indications point to a total attendance of four or five hundred.

The E. C. S. N. is being conducted on a plan that is sure to win in the out come. They do regular Normal work during the summer and stand for quality and not quantity in both work and numbers.

DON'T SPIT; YOU'D BETTER NOT

YOU HAVE FROM NOW TILL JUNE THE 20TH TO BREAK THE HABIT

If you have any spitting to do around the post office you had better do it between now and the 20th of this month. Just eight days after today. Postmaster Winn has instructions from Washington to enforce the city ordinance pertaining to the sanitary condition of the post office, which he will most assuredly do. Furthermore he will have the cooperation of the City Health officer. However, is willing to give the spitters a few days to break the habit. ## WHAT A WOMAN CAN DO IN KANSAS

If there are any women anywhere who feel that their scope of activity is too seriously restricted by the laws of their state, let them go to Kansas. The good old Sunflower state just dotes on being nice to women and the laws of this commonwealth do nothing seriously to hamper the activities of women.

Just notice what a woman can do in Kansas if she wants to:

She can keep her own name when she gets married. She can persuade her husband to give up his own, if she does not like her husband's name.

She can keep her own name and her husband can keep his, although she is married.

She can retain her maiden name for business transactions and take her husband's name for other purposes.

If the wife and husband are not satisfied with either name, they can take an entirely new name.

If the woman desires to wear real men's trousers, she can wear them. She can not vote at a state or county election, but she can hold any state or county office.

In Kansas, none of these things is prohibited by law, as in many other states. Only custom prescribes that a woman take her husband's name when she is married to him or that she continue to wear skirts.

BUGGY TURNS OVER

Edna Shelby who lives in North Ada was driving along East 14th street Sunday morning and before crossing a bridge the vehicle bounded across a ditch throwing a little child who was with her off the seat. The girl catching at the baby pulled the horse too near the edge of the bridge. The buggy ran off the bridge breaking the fore wheel throwing the two children to the ground. They were not seriously hurt but were badly frightened. The horse being gentle though it had broken loose from the vehicle stopped a few feet away and patiently waited to be hitched up again.

Going Home

Though the members of the Fallow family are deeply attached to one another, they have carried to the superlative degree the theory of letting one another alone. Their idea is that the only way to be truly happy is not to be perpetually demanding information as to one another's movements and plans. The result is that no Fallow knows at all about the other Fallows.

This was why Sumner Falloway had a sudden idea in the middle of a golf game. He had been west for two months on business and was breaking off the traveling habit by degrees. Instead of landing in Chicago at once and immersing himself in work inside of 15 minutes, after the habit of most men, he had dropped off his train when it neared his golf club because the day was fine.

The idea which had clutched him while he was playing golf that day was that probably his father and mother had arrived home from their winter in California and the family house was open again. The elder Fallows were due at just about this time. If so, it would be a joy to go home instead of to the club, where he had lived while in town that winter.

Hastening indoors, he called his home telephone number, and after the usual delay was told, cold-bloodedly by a meat market that it was not the Falloway residence. To be sure it might have the old Falloway telephone number, but nevertheless it was interrupted only in shops and stores. Disgratified, Sumner concluded that instead of going through the red tape of calling the "information" bureau, he would save time by calling up the Bremers, who lived next door to the Falloways.

When he got the Bremers there was nobody in but a foreign maid, who was hard of comprehension. Reducing his inquiries to simple form he learned from Freda that there were "people in the house next door," and started relievedly. It would be fine to see his father and mother again after so many months, and it would be pleasant to have his own roof over his wandering head once more.

Then he finished his golf game, had dinner with some friends, and, once more clutching his faithful suitcase, started for home.

There were no lights downstairs, but through the hall window on the second floor he could see the reflection from lights in the rear. Probably they were just beginning to get settled. Whistling he ran up the steps and tried his latchkey. The key turned, but the door was bolted inside. That was odd, so early in the evening, too!

Then he rang the bell. There was no answer. Suddenly he comprehended. In everybody's absence thieves were living there and sacking the house! "Anyhow," he was going to see what was going on inside. He remembered a certain basement window that could be opened. Crawling in and sprawling on the coal pile, he stumbled carefully up to the ground floor and stealthily to the second.

The house seemed deserted and dead still. But at the second floor landing he saw the light again, and on tiptoe he ventured toward it. The door of a bedroom was open, and he walked in. To all appearances he was in a hospital room. There were no rugs, curtains or fripperies; and the white-capped nurse who arose in alarm from her chair by the bed added the crowing touch. She and Sumner stared in astonishment at each other.

"What's happened?" he gasped.

"Nothing," said the nurse, a little creepily, "but scarlet fever is happening—didn't you know? What are you doing here?"

Then she told him the story. It seemed the Hopkinses on the other side of the Fallows from the Bremers had a relative who had come to visit them, bringing her little boy and the little boy had brought along a case of scarlet fever. The Hopkinses, possessing three small children on their own account, in their panic had begged from Sumner's brother Fred, who was married and lived elsewhere, the temporary use of the vacant Falloway house for their afflicted relative. As the elder Fallows had decided to stay away another month Fred had granted the Hopkinses' request. The scarlet-fever boy, his mother and a nurse were occupying the quarantined Falloway home.

As it appeared, so did Sumner. When he, after an agonized and heated talk with the powers that be, learned that he was indeed at home and home to stay for quite a time, his remarks were vigorous and profuse.

At present he is still in quarantine, waiting to be fumigated and released. Daily, over the telephone with his new number, he reproaches his charitable brother Fred, who has an abominable sense of humor and so is not soothing to talk to!

Turkish Women and the Veil.
Turkish women do not wear veils because of their religion, as many suppose. It is merely the survival of an old custom. When the Turks still lived in Tartary, before the time of Mohammed, it was the habit of the men to steal such women for wives as attracted them. This led to so much fighting that about the second century after Christ the Turks came together and decided that henceforth the women should go veiled, and should not meet men, but should dwell in harems as soon as they arrived at womanhood—which was at about 11 years of age.

The Training of Simpkins

When Simpkins began calling at Paradise flat, which is the name Caroline and Edwin have given their girl bachelor apartment, his hostess agreed that he was rather a bore. But as time went on and he continued to come with marked regularity they both found him interesting, although they did not confide this fact to each other. On the contrary, they still spoke of him with good-natured derision and never for a moment owned that any elaboration of dress on the evenings he was expected had any connection with his visits.

There was something touching in the naive manner with which Simpkins consulted them on many little social points. He admitted that he had never had the opportunity of learning much about the intricacies of good form until he had the advantage of their acquaintance. So they began to feel that he was their mission.

"What colored necktie shall I wear with my new gray spring suit?" he asked one evening.

"A green one of a soft dull shade," suggested Edwin.

"I think a gray one, a little lighter tone than the suit, with a touch of red in it, will be much smarter," said Caroline.

"Gray and red is so commonplace," said Edwin.

"I don't think so," returned Caroline firmly.

Simpkins, after declaring that he would provide himself with neckties of both kinds, hastened to change the subject.

This difference of opinion was the beginning of many disagreements in regard to Simpkins. However, he continued to consult them and his path grew more smooth when they began to receive him separately. Caroline pleaded a headache on the night of one visit and Edwin was excused on account of fatigue on another evening. So it became the custom for only one girl to appear when he called.

On the day that Caroline happened upon Simpkins and Edwin lunching together downtown, she haughtily declined his invitation to join them. She also refused to see him that evening, though it was her turn to entertain him. She insisted that she had important letters to write.

The next morning when she started to her office, as usual, a few minutes later than Edwin, she found Simpkins loitering on the corner.

"This is Saturday, and I hope that you'll go to the matinee with me," said he so humbly that she could not find it in her heart to decline.

"Perhaps I don't prefer Edwin," she said to herself when she had parted. "If he accidentally met her downtown yesterday noon, very likely she gave him the opportunity to invite her to lunch. Even very nice girls do that sort of thing sometimes, though I should never have expected such forwardness of Edwin."

"Where were you this afternoon, Caroline?" asked Edwin that evening.

"I thought you were coming home early."

"I did intend to, but I went to the matinee."

"Oh, I see," remarked Edwin with icy sweetness. "How very nice! I hope you enjoyed it?"

"Very much indeed, thank you."

"Do you know, Caroline, I always think that a man who goes to the matinee is rather silly. Goodness, there's the bell! You didn't expect him—any one, to night, did you?"

"Of course not. You know he was here last night."

"Well, it's his ring, anyway. Will you see him? You'll have to, for I have important letters to write."

When Caroline opened the door for the caller he said immediately that he wanted to see both of them.

"I've got something to tell you that I want you both to hear," stammeringly announced Simpkins after Edwin had been summoned. "I tried to tell you, Miss Edwin, at lunch yesterday, but somehow I didn't succeed, and this afternoon I meant to tell you, Miss Caroline, at the matinee, but I couldn't, so I just made up my mind to run in tonight."

"You are awfully good friends of mine and I don't believe I should ever have gained my great happiness if it hadn't been for the splendid advice you have given me. I know you'll be glad to hear that I'm engaged to Mrs. Welby, my landlady."

"We hope you'll be very happy," said Edwin.

"I'm sure I shall," returned Simpkins fatuously, "and I shall tell her how grateful she must be to you two for making me anywhere near worthy of her. I'm sorry I can't stay longer, but she's expecting me."

"We wouldn't detain you for the world," said both girls at once. Then, scarcely waiting for the door to close behind their guest, they burst into the friendliest kind of laughter.

Let Me Enjoy.
Let me enjoy the earth no less because the all-enacting light that fashioned forth its loveliness had other things than my sight.

About my path there flits a Fair, who throws me not a word or sign; I will find charm in her uncared, and lead those lips not meant for mine.

From manuscripts of moving song, inspired by scenes and souls unknown, I'll pour out raptures that belong. To others, as they were my own.

Perhaps some day, toward Paradise and all its bliss—if such should be—I shall lift glad, afar-off eyes, though it contain no place for me.

—Thomas Hardy.

ENDING A QUARREL

There was not a bit of doubt that the young woman was angry. The more she thought it over the angrier she grew. It was inconceivable that a grown-up man could have been so foolish as to get up a quarrel with her over nothing at all—for that was what had happened the evening before.

She didn't in the least know what it was about, though she had a vivid recollection of his saying it was "all her fault." He had said that it was his fault. He had said some weird ideas that she had picked, the quarrel herself out of curiosity as to what he would do. At this accusation she had passed from surprise through injury to anger. Now in broad daylight she felt certain that nothing on earth would tempt her to take one step toward reconciliation. She would stand on her dignity, inasmuch as she wasn't to blame.

Of course she felt rather sad about it, because she was aware that the man never would give in first and say he was sorry if he died for it and neither would she and naturally that meant the end of their friendship. Men did nothing but make one miserable anyway and she was tired of them.

She was hunting out a pamphlet on social settlement work and was resolving to devote her time in future to elevating the poor and worthy and appreciative when the postman rang the bell.

The man had written, in very black ink with pen strokes that shrieked emphasis, a long screed and had had the effrontery to send it to her. He had headed it, "An Essay on Woman, by a Cynic." She sat down and unfolded the sheets of paper with the tips of her delicate fingers and started to read.

"Being a cynic," ran the document, "I can say anything I want to about a woman, and as I already have the reputation of being morose and churlish I can sink no deeper in the oblivion of feminine disapproval. Anyhow, what care I?"

"In starting a scientific and searching essay such as this we should first get it firmly fixed in our minds what a woman really is and the most descriptive words of her which I can think of at the present moment are 'doggone peculiar.'"

"Now, having conveyed to my readers a mental picture of a woman, so that if the reader should chance to be an inexperienced youth he will immediately cast his eyes elsewhere when in the presence of one and thus avoid a large amount of this world's troubles, I will proceed, with my dissertation."

"In speaking of a woman it does not pay to go too much into detail about her, for most of them are so different that it makes a detailed description impossible. In fact, I have known them to be different 460 times an hour. You may rest assured that in the matter of being different they are all alike."

"Now, what effect has this on man? I will tell you it makes cynics of us! I hurl this fact back at the feet of femininity, which when it wishes to cast aspersions on man calls him cynical! Cynical! If women carefully thought over this word they would not use it so gaily, for in reality it simply means 'worldly-wise.' Yes, friends, we are wise to the women and this is what makes us cynical! Far be it from their intent to call us wise, though they might admit that we are worldly."

"I do not like to talk about woman this way behind her back, but we all know that we never would get a chance to talk if we didn't do it behind her back! Cynical! How that word describes my feelings this dark, gloomy day! My head is full of recollections of how a woman fed me compliments last evening until I swelled up and strutted around like a peacock—and 30 minutes later I was nothing but a shifty-eyed angleworm waiting to be stepped on!"

"All for why? Because a foolish girl got tired of the plain sailing she had had for weeks and wanted to stir up a tempest! She wanted a nice little tempest, one that she could stop when she chose by waving a finger at it and murmuring: 'Stop, tempest! So she began to rock the boat and whistle for rough weather. At last accounts the tempest was still on, though a good brand of oil judiciously applied sometimes has been known to calm raging waters. But it has to be a good quality and applied with a soothing touch."

She folded up the sheets of paper and then she laughed in spite of herself. When she stopped laughing she said something that sounded like "Perfect idiot!" Then she took down the telephone receiver.

"Hello!" she said when he answered. "Come out tonight and bring the tempest along—I'm going to stop it!"

Nature.
To speak truly, few adult persons can see nature. Most persons do not see the sun, at least they have a very superficial seeing. The sun illuminates only the eye and the heart of the child. The lover of nature is he whose inward and outward senses are still truly adjusted to each other; who has retained the spirit of infancy even into the era of manhood. His intercourse with heaven and earth becomes part of his daily food. In the presence of nature, a wild delight runs through the man, in spite of real sorrows. Nature says, he is my creature, and mangle all his inhumanity, griefs, he shall be glad with me.
